Maine Campus Reorganizes, Moves to Desktop Publishing

For the first time in 15 years, the Maine Campus has reorganized and expanded to better serve the University community.

According to Steven Pappas, editor of the Maine Campus for two consecutive semesters, the changes range from the restructuring of the newspaper's policy and operating manual to the reorganization of the newsroom, advertising and business departments.

"The newspaper has always been a catalyst for jokes," Pappas said, "But, now I think people at Maine will take a lot of pride in the school newspaper as a result of these changes."

The newspaper was able to sell its dated production equipment in order to purchase a complete Macintosh desktop publishing system, which, according to Pappas, has endless creative possibilities. The two-station publishing center was paid for by revenue generated by the Maine Campus advertising department.

"With the right people running this new equipment there is no limit to the things we can do with the Campus," he said.

Again this semester, the newspaper will be on the newstands three days a week - Monday, Wednesday and Friday. However, unlike last semester, the University community will see the tabloid newspaper earlier in the day.

"We can quickly generate camera-ready pages, which means the newspaper is basically ready to go to press faster," Pappas explained. "Before, with the older equipment, we were cutting and pasting the paper together, so it took longer to produce."

Pappas said the newspaper will have new sections, including classified advertisements, student life, and community events.

"We may be able to put out a newspaper that is comparable to any other newspaper in the state of Maine," Pappas said. "We are making the Campus more attractive to consumers, which makes us more competitive."

In addition to all the capital investments, Pappas and the newly-elected business manager, Eric Roach, were able to rewrite the Maine Campus operating guidelines, and by-laws.

"The newspaper needed to adopt new guidelines to illustrate how it should operate from now on," Pappas said. "There needs to be consistency with the newspaper and that is hard to achieve when there is a new editor and a new staff each semester."

In addition, the newspaper's management raised advertising rates — off-campus rates rose 15 percent, while on-campus rates rose 10 percent.

And Now...

A Word on the UM Perspective

As Maine Perspective enters its second year, we would like to take this opportunity to review some of the findings of the recent readers survey, and to look ahead.

The readers survey was designed to accomplish a number of things, including reducing printing and postage costs - and paper waste - by updating our mailing lists. It also allowed readers to tell us just what they thought - good and bad - about the publication. And they did.

Off-campus readers overwhelmingly welcomed and applauded the changes from Weekly Calendar to Maine Perspective by a margin of 8-1. On campus, readers who considered Maine Perspective a breath of fresh air outnumbered those who passionately missed the long-standing Weekly Calendar by a margin of 2-1.

Along with kudos were concerns about keeping a day-by-day calendar and returning to the former 8 1/2-by-11-inch format. Some readers were concerned about what they perceived to be the additional cost of producing Maine Perspective as opposed to Weekly Calendar, while others reminded us of the need to conserve precious natural resources. And more than anything, readers wanted specific subjects and topics addressed in Maine Perspective.

As a result, this is what we have done: Maine Perspective this year is a weekly publication that will include a two-week Calendar and all the elements of Bulletin Board - Along the Mall (faculty and staff accomplishments), Campus Notes, Sponsored Programs listings, Publications (of faculty and staff), Directory Changes and Oral Exams. Because almost 80 percent of all the readers we heard from on and off campus told us that they enjoy and want more stories about the University of Maine, Maine Perspective will continue to carry a variety of news and feature articles.

The survey responses added to the never-ending list of possible stories that can be written about the people, places and programs that are the University of Maine. Maine Perspective will attempt to carry stories on as many of the requests as possible. Some topics were consistently raised by several readers and, as a result, look for regular columns in Maine Perspective this fall on Fogler Library, the budget situation at UM, recycling on campus, UM international activities and University history. A special column twice monthly will be devoted to classified employees, and, as a new feature of Maine Perspective, readers will have an opportunity to submit questions that will be addressed in a column by UM President Dale Lick.

The day-to-day two-week calendar that was part of Maine Perspective last semester will remain. It will, however, be inserted as a handy pull-out for posting and, according to many readers, will be easier to keep on file because of its smaller size.

Last year's biweekly Maine Perspective in tabloid format was more cost-effective to print than Weekly Calendar. This fall, Maine Perspective is being printed weekly by UM Printing Services as a service to the University community. The paper stock that has been chosen for Maine Perspective, while not made from recycled fibers, is highly recyclable, and we urge readers to do so. We also urge our on-campus readers to use Maine Perspective rather than using reams of paper to do a University-wide mailing.

There is, however, a request of a number of off-campus readers that we are unable to accommodate at this time. Due to third-class mailing, Maine Perspective arrives several days later off campus than on campus. Unfortunately, budget constraints prohibit the Department of Public Affairs from paying first-class postage for its mailing. However, readers can now subscribe to Maine Perspective for $18 a year. By subscribing, readers will be ensured that the publication is mailed first class.

And finally, we would like to thank all the readers who took the time to respond to our survey. Your honesty, encouragement, constructive critique and support were appreciated. Our door is always open, our mailbox never too full and our phonelines open for comments about the publication or news and feature story ideas.

"We are still the most affordable newspaper around. People can advertise with us and still feel they are getting a real deal," he said.

Both the Orono and Bangor newspapers charge twice or three times as much for advertisements compared to the Maine Campus, Pappas said.

The Maine Campus has 15 staff writers for the fall semester, as well as a new advertising and business staff.

"The new people, equipment, attitude, and policy are a breath of fresh air for UM at a time when we all need to have something to be proud of," Pappas said. "With all the cuts taking place around campus people need to sit down, relax and enjoy the newspaper."
